

Depletion

Edward L. Hart

The city darkens with the natural night
Like country houses when the twilight ends
On summer evenings and no form unbends
From strain of too much day to make more light.

Edward L. Hart, recipient of the Association for Mormon Letters poetry award in 1979 for To Utah, is a professor in the English Department at Brigham Young University.